Only Irate Parrot

INCIDENT. Aug. 5.—Mrs. King, wife of Rev. Yorke, started to enter her home on the side street shortly before midnight last night, but stopped when she heard a noise like water coming from the back of some of a neighbor's house. She called the police and squads from the 10th police division, traffic division, Precinct 4 station sped to the scene and surrounded the house. When I. Lang of the Knight's patrol, first on the scene, saw a shadow huddled in the doorway and a voice demanded, "What's the matter?"

Lang, holding the hardly discernible light of his pistol, called to the other officers, "I've got a parrot here."

The lights were snapped on and a man resembling a parrot was seen. Beneath it a man in a blue coat clattered back and forth on the floor of his cage demanding, "What's the matter?"

Miss Fall River

Selected at Park

Miss Ruth O. Brereton Is Voted City's Beauty Representative.

The Atlantic City beauty pageant was held at Cashman's ballroom, Island Park, Thursday night to select the representative of this city in the coming beauty contest at the famous resort. Miss Ruth O. Brereton, 86 Richmond street, was chosen as "Miss Fall River." Fifteen competitors made an attractive picture as they filed by in the latest white rubber bathing suits, enhanced by an American beauty rose on the shoulder. After a triple elimination, the choice of the judges was that of the 16-year-old Fall River miss.

MISS RUTH O. BRERETON

Miss Brereton, who has been selected as such by long experience and deserved reputation were Walter Burke, Mrs. Catherine Malley and Miss Nina Tora, all connected with the pageant organization.

Preceding the advent of the pageant into the program, a food show was presented consisting of (1) rumba and modern interpretive dancing by Miss Nina Tora; vocal selections by Miss Mary Malley and songs by Walter Burke.

A crowd of 1200 witnessed the contest which was adjudged one of the most superior of its type to be conducted in this section of New England. The contest was under the direction of John Welch who is in charge of the selection of Miss New England. Mr. Burke was master of ceremonies during the evening.
